Mona and Robert will lead the community building process transparently.

- Communicate with authenticity
- Relate with love and respect

- Seek, honor and affirm diversity
- Bridge differences with integrity
- Acknowledge our human frailties
- Take responsibility for our actions and make amends where possible
- Practice forgiveness for ourselves and others

This CBW is open for general public and it also serves as gathering for people interested to join a one-year round training group for new facilitators or people interested in living/acting together as a true community.

Introducing facilitators:

Robert Reusing

Robert was selected and trained by Scott Peck and the Foundation for Community Encouragement (FCE) to be a facilitator of community building in the mid 1980s. He has facilitated workshops across the US and internationally in Russia, Canada, Asia and South America. Robert served as the Director of Programs for FCE from 1990-2003. As Director of Programs he oversaw and arranged all FCE programs including the workshops with Unilever. Since that time, Robert has continued to facilitate community building, and has trained others to Facilitate through the Community Facilitation Program. Mona Reaume

Having a large extended family and an eclectic work background (swather driver, group facilitator, adjudication agent...) Mona developed an appreciation for the complexity of people, relationships, systems and the dynamics between individuals and groups. Her personal desire to find better ways of communicating, nurturing relationships, and working in teams, made the discovery of the Foundation for Community Encouragement (FCE) and community building in 2004 life-changing. Since 2005 she has been facilitating community building workshops in Canada, across the United States, and recently in Chile. In June 2014 she trained to become a Community Facilitation Program Trainer. Mona is currently Co-Chair of the FCE Council, and she continues to learn from life's challenges.
